When onboarding a new local business client, one of the most common oversights we encounter is an underutilized Google Business Profile (GBP) category setup. Most businesses select their primary category and stop there—leaving significant ranking opportunities on the table.

Google offers over 1,000 different business categories, each providing a unique opportunity to appear in relevant local searches. By strategically selecting multiple categories, you expand your client's visibility across various search terms their potential customers might use.

Why Multiple Categories Matter

Think of GBP categories as different doors into your client's business. Each category represents a different way customers might search for their services. When you only use one category, you're essentially keeping all but one door locked.

 Key Insight: While it's easier to rank for broader categories, using multiple specific categories helps you capture more targeted, high-intent searches.

The Smart Approach to Category Selection

Instead of manually reviewing Google's thousand-plus categories, we'll use AI to streamline the process:

Step 1: Gather Your Information

Collect the following details about your client:

- Business type and primary service
- Location
- Complete list of services offered

Step 2: Use AI for Category Recommendations

Here's the efficient method we use:

1. Input your client's business description (e.g., "HVAC service installation company in Houston")
2. Add their complete service list

3. Use ChatGPT to generate a list of GBP categories

This approach transforms what could be hours of research into a quick, targeted list of appropriate categories.

Step 3: Review and Select Categories

Hiding Content from Users

From the AI-generated list:

- Start at the top and work your way down
- Verify each category against actual services provided
- Select categories that accurately represent your client's offerings

✦ Important Rule: Choose 5 secondary categories plus your primary category (6 total)

Best Practices for Category Selection

When reviewing potential categories, ask yourself:

- Does the client actually provide this service?
- Is this how customers would search for the business?
- Does this category complement the primary category?

⚠ Warning: Never select categories for services your client doesn't actually provide. This can harm their credibility and potentially lead to GBP suspension.
