Leveraging Quality Mentions for AI System Recommendations

This lesson covers a strategy specifically for getting your clients recommended by AI systems — Google AI Overviews, ChatGPT, and others. If you're already showing up in AI recommendations or you're only focused on Maps, this one's optional. But if you want to crack into AI-generated answers, this is how.

The core idea: AI systems heavily weight mentions from quality sources when deciding who to recommend. These are harder to earn than typical local links, but you can buy them strategically through a platform called PRASAP.com.

Two tiers of mentions are available. The high-end "media features" tier gets you placed in publications like Rolling Stone or Men's Health — but that's $15K-$35K and only makes sense for clients with big budgets (think private jet companies). For most local businesses, the "budget PR" tier is where you'll live. These are affordable placements in regional and city-level publications.

How to use it: Search by your client's city or region and see what's available. Dallas, Scottsdale, Phoenix, Chicago, San Francisco — there are geo-specific publications for a lot of
